REMARKABLE YEAR FOR 2-YEAR-OLDS

fulfilment of the prophecy made early in the season that this was to be a remarkable year for good two-year-olds. Song and Wine amazed every one in the Juvenile by his easy defeat of Right Royal and Augur, who, bn their form at Aqueduct, were entitled to be called pretty fair youngsters. Then Song and Wine reapeted and cinched his claim to class. He carried 125 pounds and won as easily as he did in the Juvenile. Then came Tanya, wearing the Duryea colors, and she made an exhibition of Lalite, who showed such phenomenal speed at Bennings. Tanya came back with another race and won just as easily, and the beat Blandy. Lalite Then came Bellatrix, in the colors of J. G. Follansbee, and she just breezed ome in front of The Claimant, who was one of the best looking youngsters seen at Bennings. That The Claimant as good as he looks is evident from the fact that the beat his horses six lengths while running second to Bella-

Belle Strome Now.

Now comes Belle Strome, a full sis ter to that great race mare Eugenia Burch, and she amazed the crowd yesterday by breezing home under wraps nd beating a good field. Belle Strome s a wonder for speed, and a meeting Tanya and Bellatrix would be extreme ly interesting. It goes without saying that the fur would fly.

There are many more good young that the fur would fly.

There are many more good youngsters to come. For some reason Mr. Paget has started none of his cracks, nor have the real good ones in the Whitney string been shown. There are bunches of good two-year-olds that will be shown at Gravesend and Sheepshead.

The latter meeting should be replete with brilliant sport, for there are so many rich stakes for all classes of horses, that the best are sure to be sent to the post. With all the good two-year-olds developing day by day the racing in that division should be very interesting.

Thus far the three-year-old division seems deficient in quality, but the all-aged division, and particularly the four-year-olds, seem to be very strong, and there are grand races ahead.

periments were watched with the greatest interest by Marconi's party, made up of his secretary, George S. Kemp, and his experts, Fred S. Stacey, Henry Kirkshaw and W. W. Bradfield. They were more than satisfied with results. Marconi will stay here about a week He then goes to Canada for a few days and then comes back here to sail for Europe again. He will sail on a Cunarder, and in all probability his return trip will be the first occasion of the publication of the Cunard Bulletin.

on the Irish coast in as perfect trim as possible for the sending of messages. The new instruments, one of which is said to be a marveloug advance in receiving apparatus, were installed on the Campania, and it was Marconi's plan to keep in constant communication with land.

In Continuous Communication.

At no time during the trip did Marconi lose communication with land, but after Wednesday night he dropped the Poldhu station and took up the station at Slasconsett (Nantucket). This change was due to the Poldhu station meeting with some accident, just what, Marconi, said to-day, he couldn't tell, but it was apparent to him that something was wrong with the senders although the receivers were working perfectly. He therefore dropped the other side and took up Slasconsett and Cape Breton. The success of the experiments, however, lies in the fact that all times he ever, lies in the fact that all times he was in touch with land.
